Malta's Economic Growth - 2019

The European Commission has positively forecasted an economic growth in Malta which is mainly fuelled by growth in domestic demand. This will continue to assist in employment creation, on the back of record-low unemployment and increasing labour supply. The labour market is reflecting an inflow of foreign workers, as well as an increasing amount of women working in the labour market.

Investments are expected to increase considerably in 2019, along with the prospect of expanding projects in health, technology and telecom sectors.

The European Commission further acknowledges that Malta's sizeable current account surplus was sustained reflecting the solid performance of the internationally-oriented services sector.
